Dear Padre
 April 8, 2018

When our priest raises the host during the consecration at Mass, a parishioner says out loud, “My Lord and my God!” Am I out of line to feel this isn’t right?

The liturgical assembly at Mass isn’t a random collection of individuals; rather, the faithful form a holy people to give thanks to God. “They are consequently to avoid any appearance of singularity or division.... This unity is beautifully apparent from the gestures and bodily postures observed together by the faithful” (General Instruction of the Roman Missal, 95-96). Moreover, unity is achieved in the vocal prayers and responses at Mass, “That, gathered into one body by the Holy Spirit,” we “May truly become a living sacrifice in Christ” (Eucharistic Prayer IV).

The Eucharistic Prayer - the preeminent prayer of the Church - is voiced by the priest on everyone’s behalf. All participate in the collective prayer by our acclamations throughout: the dialogue preface, Sanctus, memorial, and great amen. Here we express our belief in the mystery of faith and our unity in the Church’s prayer.

The revised Roman Missal omitted the memorial acclamation, “Christ has died, Christ is risen, Christ will come again,” because there’s no equivalent text in the original Latin and also because it’s more of a proclamation of faith than a prayer.

Likewise, “My Lord and my God” is a proclamation of faith that may be for some an entirely appropriate response for a believer as the host is raised, but the Church provides three communal prayers as acclamations immediately following the consecration. Any personal expression should be said quietly to preserve the unity of the Mass.
