Dear Padre July 14, 2019

Scripture readings refer to the vessel holding the Precious Blood as a cup; the liturgy calls it a chalice. Why the change in the liturgy that now conflicts with Scripture?

Translating The Roman Missal follows principles of Liturgiam Authenticam, a Vatican document requiring literal translations of the original languages to clearly and universally express the Church's faith.

Our liturgy uses languages differently in the prayers and Scripture readings. Latin is the source of most prayers in The Missal. Greek is the source of the New Testament used in the liturgy.

The Missal uses the Latin word calix for the vessel Jesus offers with his Precious Blood. Translators use the word chalice, meaning "a cup, goblet, or drinking vessel."

The Gospel and Pauline Eucharist accounts use the Greek word pooterion for the vessel Jesus uses - literally, a cup. It is confusing, the priest consecrates the chalice and we proclaim the death of Christ "when we eat this bread and drink this cup."

The Church's desire to communicate faithful translations of languages gives us different words for the same thing. Pastors can use this as a teaching moment so that people are not confused but affirmed in their faith. Whatever we call it, a cup or chalice, it contains the greatest gift of unity we have, the Blood of Christ.
